Policy Excesses

Certain covers will have an excess (an amount which the policyholder is responsible for paying in the event of each and every claim) applied.

The policy schedule will detail what any relevant excesses are.

Key Obligations of the Policyholder

- The policyholder has a duty to make a fair presentation of the risk which they wish to insure. This applies prior to the start of the policy, if any variation is required during the period of insurance and prior to each renewal. Failure to provide accurate information may result in a claim not being paid (either in full or in part) or could even invalidate the policy.
- The policyholder has a duty to tell us as soon as possible but in any event within 30 days of any changes to the information that they have provided to us throughout the period of insurance. Failure to update any information may result in a claim not being paid (either in full or in part) or could even invalidate the policy.
- The policyholder must maintain the property at the premises in a good state of repair. Failure to do so may result in a claim not being paid (either in full or in part) or could even invalidate the policy.
- The policyholder must take reasonable steps to prevent or protect against bodily injury, loss or damage, keep all equipment and machinery in good condition and remedy any defects or dangers as soon as possible.
- The policyholder must tell us immediately that they become aware if any building(s) at the premises become(s) unoccupied.
- It is important that the policyholder provides us with an accurate declared value and sums insured for the premises to avoid being underinsured, as this may have an impact on how we pay a claim.

Cancellation Information

The policyholder may cancel the policy if they feel that for any reason it is not suitable, by notifying their insurance broker or intermediary in writing (letter or email), within 14 days of either the date they receive their policy documentation or the inception or renewal of the policy, whichever is the later.
